

Zetafax 2009 adds server virtualization & support for boardless faxing

London, UK 10:00 23/03/09

Leading software provider, Equisys plc, today announced the release of the latest version of its renowned fax software, Zetafax 2009. The integration of Zetafax with market leading virtualization server platform, VMWare[®], as well as the option to enable boardless faxing with the release of the Zetafax Fax over IP Connector, demonstrates Equisys' continued commitment to keeping Zetafax at the leading edge of fax server innovation.

The benefits that Zetafax 2009 brings are not however limited to virtualization support. It also adds platform support. Brooktrout[®] TR1034 and Trufax boards are now supported on Windows Server[®] 2008 and support for the latest Citrix presentation server, Citrix XenApp[®] 5, has been added to enable users to run the Zetafax Client as a terminal server application. There are also time savings for administration managers of larger systems with the ability to configure multiple Eicon[®] boards at one time and a significant reduction in the time taken to restart the Zetafax server, reducing downtime for the administrator when performing maintenance.

“Zetafax 2009 builds upon our reputation for providing support for the latest technologies that are being adopted by a wide range of businesses”, commented Chris Oswald, Equisys CEO. “In addition to supporting new releases from major software manufacturers, we continue to work on improving usability. These additions make Zetafax one of the few remaining innovative faxing solutions on the market”.

In addition to the updates of Zetafax 2009, Zetafax provides a document automation tool that enables businesses to automate the delivery of documents such as quotations and contracts quickly and simply via email. Zetafax Duo, as this option is called, adds a new document building client on top of Zetafax which produces ‘print quality’ electronic documents and delivers them by email or fax. It can help reduce the amount of paper a business uses and the associated costs of the physical storage of important documents. The latest release adds the ability to include html and graphics into the body copy of emails, so the auto-generated emails can be branded and can include images.

Chris Oswald suggested, “Many of our customers have achieved further cost savings by adding Zetafax Duo. It provides a simple and affordable way of automating electronic creation and delivery of documents which are commonly produced manually, many times over, across the organisation. It provides a choice of delivery methods, either by fax or email, and delivers a quick return on investment because it can eliminate the need for printing and storage”.
